DESTROYING FEAR

A Marvelous Performance—It is Not a Discovery—Something Must be Secured to Perform such a Magnificent Task—A Hard Lesson to Learn.

By W. T. Williams.

This is a marvelous performance as well as a magnificent one. It is a piece of work worthy of our deep and lasting admiration, because, if our modern way of thinking is reliable, we may well believe that one cause of our trepidation and vexation must come to an end—if not the paramount one. War is waged on this demon with might and main from all angles, and that because we have been taught to believe that it is working against our well-being in every particular. It has been decided that it is not conducive to strength and mastery, and since it is the spirit of this age for one to have dominion over one's self, fear has been classed with the diabolical, and out it must go. And we are not taught in this day and generation that fear is the most destructive of all the agencies of the Kingdom of Darkness? Is it not advocated on every hand that fear undermines our chances by undermining our health? Has it not been told to us in unequivocal language that only foolish and shortsighted people allow it to rule in their systems? All this is true, and then we are not to wonder at the large number of plain folk who have given this matter such unflinching attention. It deserves a place in the front rank of our thoughts, when we are determined to slay it. The time we give it is not given in vain when we are resolved to overthrow it, because it is difficult for us to turn a question of this nature in our minds without being thankful to the Eternal Father, the infinite source of all goodness. His help to subdue fear has been promised to us. In this we are fellow workers with the Master.

This is not a discovery. We fail to see our way clear to accept this part of it. We feel that our need along this line is too real to depend upon a discovery, for discoveries are too liable to change with the coming of each age. Judging by what we have seen and heard, discoveries are not steadfast enough to encourage reliance and peace. They are the works of men, and, although sincere, men change their minds. Discoveries are leaving behind them certain things all the while. We must have that personal acquaintance with the One who can not mislead. He is the One that knows the ins and outs of our lives, and our confidence in Him bears fruit. It destroys fear, making us properly conscious of the Eternal Father. Faith in Him is a respite of quietude and joy unapproachable. When the man from Nazareth told His disciples one day: "Fear not, only believe in Me," it was His father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom! Are not five sparrows sold for a penny? And yet not one of them is lost without your Father's sight. But the very hairs on your heads are all counted. Away with fear; you are more precious than a multitude of sparrows. We are not to know the will of our Father. He sought to make known to them that the minuteness of His providential care is to establish in Him absolute faith. Is this not too sublime to be called a discovery? What is it then? Unmistakably it is a revelation—a revelation of the heart of the Heavenly Father.

"And what I am beheld again
What is, and no man understands,
And out of darkness came the hands
That reach through nature, moulding men."

This is a hard lesson for many people to learn, including ourselves. But this should not have any bearing on this glorious fact, because when we find ourselves trying to mistrust it, we also find that we are at the same moment trying to establish in Him instead that which has no comfort in its veins. We know that such is the case when we are at our best. Evolution written with a capital E, signifies nothing. It is a misnomer, deluding the unwary. The words of Dr. Charles R. Brown of Yale are very much to the point: "This promise of a personal, minute attention to the needs of these myriads of human lives staggers our belief. The mind is not built on a scale so readily apprehend the full content of such an affirmation. But the Heavenly Father is the Infinite Father! The scale and range of His boundless interest are such as to demand literally an endless array of objects upon which to spend His love. There is with Him no saturation-point of interest to be speedily reached by the increasing number of small concerns." These words are true, but since they have come from a theologian, listen again to the words of that keen philosopher, William James of Harvard: "God has no inexhaustible capacity for love that His call and need is for a literally endless accumulation of created lives. He can never faint nor grow weary as we should under the increasing supply. His scale is infinite in all things. His sympathy can never know satiety and give away with fear. We have a Father who is able and willing to be unto us all in all."

The end of another year has come around, and when we do so, we do than leave ourselves in His hands, believing with a large degree of assurance that His will has no harm in store for us. He will not fail us. He is painfully anxious for us to place our unwavering trust in Him. This is the way of composure in a world like ours. It might be that we have been disappointed more than once during the last twelve months. It might be that we have not been so successful as we expected to be. It might be that we have lost in death near relatives and fast friends. It might be that we have been chagrined by the ways of ambitious men, losing confidence in them, being led by their bad manners to the very verge of despair. But, we have The Father, who is so suitable to our needs—who is longing for more room to bless us more abundantly.

"What though the world deceitful prove,
And earthly friends and joys remove,
With patient, uncomplaining love
Still would I cling to Thee.
Though faith and hope may long be tried,
I ask not, need not aught beside;
How safe, how calm, how satisfied,
The souls that cling to Thee.
Blest is my lot, when'er befall;
What can disturb me, who appal,
While, as my strength, my rock, my all,
Savior, I cling to Thee?"

Now, since we have done our best, and since we want to be more useful than ever, can we think of anything better that we can do? Can we imagine anything more trustworthy? Tell me, Thy secret, help me bear and effective than the old way of service? Do we know anything more becoming than the unselfish mode of life? I trow not. Dr. Washington Gladden was right in his prayer:—"O Master, let me walk with Thee in lowly paths of service free. The strain of toll, the fret of care. Help me the slow of heart to move. By some clear, winning word of love, Teach me the wayward feet to stay, And guide them in the homeward way."

OHIO'S CORN SHOW.

Arrangements have been completed for the Seventh Annual Ohio Corn Show, which will be held in conjunction with the Ohio Apple Show, Ohio Dairy Show and the Ohio Poultry Show, at the State Fair Grounds, Columbus, January 8th to 15th, 1915.

The interest in the Corn Show is unusually good and it promises to excel all previous shows in the number and quality of exhibits. The corn and grain exhibits will be housed in the East Central Building. The building occupied by the several shows will be well heated and connected by covered walks.

Prof. Chas. F. Noll, of the Pennsylvania State College of Agriculture, Prof. Edgar Brown, of the University of the Seed Laboratory, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and Prof. Henry G. Bell, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, will be in charge of the Corn Show. All sessions will be held in the Grange Hall, East Central Building.

The inauguration of Governor-elect Willis will draw large crowds to the Ohio Capitol on Monday, January 11th. The visitors attending the Inaugural ceremony will have an opportunity to see the Winter Exposition, which will be open at that time. General Admission to the Exposition will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children between the ages of eight and sixteen; those under eight admitted free.

The Corn-Dairy Banquet will be held at the Women's Building on Wednesday evening, January 13th. Governor Willis and other prominent men will be on the speaking list.

The "State Farmers' Institute" will be held on Wednesday and Thursday of Exposition week. Speakers of national reputation have been secured for these meetings. Everybody invited.

REVISION MEETING.

The fair board has called an all day meeting for Tuesday January 5th to revise the premium list. All members of the society and friends of the fair are requested to attend. There are those who have found fault because something at the fair did not meet their expectations. Many say the premiums are too small and the too much money goes for races. Some say big Free Attractions are what we need.

Many have thought to compliment the fair by saying that we have one of the cleanest fairs in Ohio. Others complain that the fair is too much like a Sunday school.

Some think it all races. Others say cut out all racing and have an agricultural fair. Truly, "Many minds."

It may be of interest to the public to know that $1,273.86 of the $2,400.24 paid out for racing last year was revenue derived from race entries and grand stand receipts.

Come out Tuesday and come loaded the board will give you a genteel hearing and will be thankful for helpful suggestions.

Remember the date Tuesday January 5, at 10 a. m. in court house Wauseon. SEC.

BUNGLING WORK

Huron County Farmer Tells of His Experience With Hoof and Mouth Disease Inspectors Contradictions, Carelessness and Loss for The Farmer.

At the request of several of our subscribers we publish herewith a letter from a Huron County Farmer which appeared in The Huron County News of week before last. The letter explains itself:

North Fairfield, Dec. 14, 1914.
To the Editor of the Huron County News:

Dear Sir—As I have read so much about this hoof and mouth disease, I am going to give you some of my experience as I have had it right on my farm one mile west and one-half mile north of North Fairfield on the Ridge Road.

I bought thirteen steers from Childs and Hoyt on Oct. 29th and just one week from the day I brought them home I notified Hoyt that the cattle I bought from him had the hoof and mouth disease.

On Nov. 5th one of the State Veterinarians and Dr. Fulstow of Norwalk came to inspect them and said that my cattle had the disease very bad. They quarantined all of my stock, just where it happened to be, and then went away.

I understood by what I had read in the papers that they slaughtered sick cattle at once. Not so in my case.

I wrote to Dr. Paul Fischer on the 11th of November and on the 13th there was another Veterinarian came with Dr. Harry Fulstow and he inspected them all just the same as the first one did, only adding that my hogs in the barnyard were also sick with the disease and that they would have to kill everything—cows, hogs and all my poultry, for they would carry the germs on their feet, but I gave them to understand that they could only kill what was sick and nothing more.

On the 17th of Nov. two more officers came with Dr. Harry Fulstow and they appeared and killed my three brood sows $39.85 and they appraised my shots at 7 cents per lb. and allowed me $34.00 for the 20 shots. They just allowed me what I paid Hoyt for the steers. I am out my feed and I will be out the interest on my money. That is the way they help the farmer.

They tell in the papers how they rope the cattle and lead them up to the trench and shoot them—apple them. They did not do that here. They told me to get some ropes and rope the cattle and lead them up to the trench and shoot them—apple them. I said, they could have ropes, but they would have to do the leading themselves.

So we made a pen and drove the steers in it and then they let one get out over the fence and run all over the farm. I shot it myself, to keep it from going over on my neighbor's farm.

Those men were not "Uncle Sam's" sharpshooters, for the men's lives were in more danger than were the cattle.

The Veterinarians are supposed to disinfect themselves on the roadside before they leave a place where the disinfect themselves in my engine room; washed off their rubber boots, then walked out through the barnyard where the sick were and got in the auto and went away.

When they were killing the cattle they inspected their mouths and feet with their bare hands and said they were nearly all over it and they were in good shape. Then one of them asked who would give him a chew of tobacco. Mr. J. West handed him his, from which he took a bite of it and handed it back to Mr. West. It certainly must be very contagious, this hoof and mouth disease.

When they left here on the 17th, they said they would be back in two or three days for to spray and clean up. They have not come yet.

There was a fourth inspector here on the 4th of December to inspect my cows and fat hogs, and he said they were all in the best of health, but they might come down with it in a week, for they should have been killed when the rest was, and that would stop the disease from breaking out again.

The first inspector that was here said if they were going to come down with it, they should have been killed ten days, and the second inspector stated from three to four weeks they would be sick sure. Now they have extended it to 40 days, I see by the papers.

There were four different inspectors here and each one told you a different story.

The best way to my notion, is to look after our own cattle and be very careful so the disease will not spread, and cut out these inspectors that are going around the county. They tell, boastfully, how they are spending millions of dollars for to stamp out this disease. It is the Veterinarians that are getting the dollars. This is their harvest. They have the farmers tied down so they cannot sell or do anything for to help themselves.

Where was the Government Inspector when these cattle came through Chicago? He could not have been attending to his business, or he would not have all this trouble now.

NEW JUDGES

Each County in Ohio Has One or More Judges of Common Pleas Court. Judge F. H. Wolf First Under The New Law For Fulton County—New Prosecuting Attorney.

To-day, January first, Judge C. E. Scott ceases to be the judge for the Common Pleas Court of Fulton County, and F. H. Wolf assumes the position on the "Bench." Charles Edwin Scott of Bryan was duly qualified to serve as Judge of the Common Pleas Court in the third judicial district on July 1st, 1910; taking the place of Judge John M. Killits who resigned to accept the appointment to the bench of the Federal Court for the Northern district of Ohio. At the election of 1910 Mr. Scott was elected to the Common Pleas Court, and he served for a term of six years and began this term January 1st, 1911; he has two years more to serve before the expiration of his term and usually the provisions of the constitutional amendments of 1912, he will serve these two years as judge of the Common Pleas Court of Williams County. Judge Scott has served Fulton county well and faithfully and has demonstrated his ability as a jurist as well as the possession of the judicial mind which is able to separate the personal prejudice and sentiments from performance of duty and to treat all who come into his court with impartial justice; he has and he merits the good will of the citizens of the county. There will necessarily be the interchange of work between Judge Scott and the new judge, F. H. Wolf, so that there will often be sessions of the Fulton County Court when Judge Wolf will preside in his former place while Judge Scott will preside in his new place.

Fred H. Wolf has been a member of the Fulton County Bar for the past ten years and has been actively engaged in the practice of law during that time. Previous to his admission to the bar, Mr. Wolf served for several years as a court stenographer in the Common Pleas Court, later he became the stenographer for Attorney General Sheets and from that position he was promoted to the office of stenographer for the State Supreme Court; from this last position he came to Wauseon.

Judge Wolf has his record as a jurist to make; those who know him best entertain no doubts as to his ability to make that record a good one and that a large number of the citizens of the county have confidence in him was demonstrated by the returns at the November election.

Closely associated with the new judge of the New Prosecuting Attorney, Charles T. Stahl, who assumes the duties of his office at the same time as Mr. Wolf. Attorney James E. T. Calkins, who has been in the office after having served two terms. Both the retiring and the incoming prosecutor have our best wishes and good feelings; one has served us well and we feel sure that the other will give equally good service.

IF YOU MUST DRINK.

To the married man who cannot get along without his drinks, the following is suggested as a solution to the bondage of his habit:

First—Start a saloon in your own house.
Second—Be the only customer. You will have no license to pay. Give your wife $2 to buy a gallon of whiskey, and remember there are 69 drinks in one gallon.
Third—Buy your drinks from no one but your wife, and by the time the first gallon is gone she will have $8 to put in the bank and $2 to start business again.
Fourth—Should you live ten years and continue to buy booze from her and then die with snakes in your boots she will have money to bury you decently, educate your children, buy a house and lot, marry a decent man, and quit thinking about you.—Exchange.

BROTHERHOOD FOR WAUSEON.

The men who attend the Methodist church, old men, middle aged men, and young men will banquet Friday evening January 8th, in the parlors of the church and effect the organization of a Brotherhood. One of the most significant movements of the church of the present is the organizing of her men for fellowship and service. Perhaps the Brotherhood of Defense holds the credit of kindling the interest which is to result so soon in a splendid Brotherhood for Wauseon, and let the men please reserve this date.
